16. International Business Principles of Viatris for Anti-Bribery and Anti-Corruption

Viatris has a longstanding policy of combating bribery and corruption in our business in and outside the US. Viatris undertakes to conduct its business with integrity and to act in accordance with the code of ethics and all applicable laws and regulations. We request the same dedication from any consultants, agents, representatives, or other businesses acting on our behalf (hereinafter referred to as "Business Partners"), as well as any businesses (i.e. subcontractors) acting on the behalf of Business Partners in connection with Viatris' operations.

Bribing Public Officials

Many countries have laws that prohibit giving, offering or promising a payment or anything of value (directly or indirectly) to a Public Official when the payment is intended to influence an official action or decision to acquire or retain business.

"Public Official" has a broad spectrum and refers to:

- (i) an elected or appointed Public Official (for example, a member of parliament or a member of a State ministry);
- (ii) a person working for or on behalf of a State-owned or -controlled institution or organization, or acting in their capacity as a public servant (such as a healthcare professional working for a State hospital or a researcher at a State university);
- (iii) an official of a political party, a candidate, an official, or an employee for a public office, or a person acting for or on behalf of a political party or candidate;
- (iv) an employee or person acting for or on behalf of an international public organization;
- (v) a member of the royal family or the military; and
- (vi) any person otherwise classified as a Public Official by law.

"Public" refers to all tiers and branches of government (i.e. local, regional or national and administrative, legislative or executive).

Due to the broad spectrum of the definition of "Public Official," it is likely that Business Partners shall interact with a Public Official while conducting regular business on behalf of Viatris. For instance, physicians working for state-run hospitals are considered to be "Public Officials".

US Foreign Corrupt Practices Act ("FCPA") prohibits making, promising or confirming a payment, or offering anything of value to a Public Official outside the US, to take or improperly or immorally influence a government action to assist a company in obtaining or retaining a business or gaining any other unfair advantage. The FCPA also forbids a company or person from involving another company or person in such activities. As a US-based enterprise, Viatris is required to abide by the FCPA and may be held accountable for the results of a Partner's actions anywhere in the world.

Anti-Bribery and Anti-Corruption Principles for Relations with the Public and Public Officials

Business Partners should communicate and abide by the following Principles in their business with the Public and Public Officials:

- Business Partners and persons acting on their behalf in connection with their business with Viatris cannot, directly or indirectly, make, promise or authorize any improper payments for or give anything of value to a Public Official to induce them to take or make a decision to take public action that Viatris takes or retains a business. Business Partners and persons acting on their behalf in connection with their business with Viatris may never pay or offer a product or additional assistance to such Public Official, regardless of value, as an improper incentive for a Public Official to approve, reimburse, prescribe or purchase a Viatris product, influence the outcome of a clinical trial, or otherwise unfairly benefit Viatris' business operations.
- Business Partners and persons acting on their behalf in connection with their business with Viatris should understand any local laws, regulations or operating procedures (including the terms of Public institutions such as government-owned hospitals or research institutions) that impose limits, restrictions or disclosure obligations on compensation, financial support, donations or gifts that may be provided to Public Officials when conducting Viatris-related activities. Prior to establishing relationships with Public Officials, a Business Partner should consult their primary contact at Viatris if they have any questions about specific limitations, restrictions, or the meaning or legality of disclosure obligations.
- Business Partners and persons acting on their behalf when they are working for Viatris are not allowed to offer facilitating payments. A "facilitating payment" is a small sum of money given to a public official to speed up or facilitate the completion of a regular and required government task. Examples of facilitating payments include payments made to expedite licensing, permits or visa procedures when all relevant paperwork is available. Where a Business Partner or a person acting on their behalf in connection with their business with Viatris receives or becomes aware of a request for a facilitating payment or bribe in connection with work performed for Viatris, relevant partner shall promptly notify the primary contact person at Viatris of such request before taking any further action.

Commercial Bribery

Bribery and corruption can also occur in business-to-business relationships outside the public. Most countries have laws in place that forbid promising, offering, receiving, accepting, or confirming payment in exchange for an unfair competitive advantage. Offering pricey gifts, lavish entertainment, unofficial commissions, or investment opportunities to improperly encourage the purchase of goods or services are only a few examples of such prohibited behaviors. Viatris does not allow its employees to offer, give, solicit, or accept bribes, and we expect Business Partners and anyone acting on their behalf to uphold these standards during their business with Viatris.

Anti-Bribery and Anti-Corruption Principles for Relations with Private Persons and Viatris Employees

Business Partners shall communicate and abide by the following principles in their relationships with private persons and Viatris employees:

- Business Partners and persons acting on their behalf in connection with their work for Viatris shall not make any improper payments to a third party, directly or indirectly, to convince them to grant Viatris an unfair competitive advantage, nor promise or approve such a payment or give them anything of value.

- Business Partners and those acting on their behalf in connection with their business with Viatris are not allowed to directly or indirectly ask for, accept, or receive money or anything of value as an unfair incentive.
- Viatris employees are not allowed to accept gifts, services, fringe benefits, entertainment, or other items of symbolic or low monetary value from Business Partners or individuals acting on their behalf, in connection with their business with Viatris. Furthermore, gifts of low value are only allowed if they are received infrequently and only on appropriate gift giving occasions.

Reporting of Suspected or Actual Violations

Business Partners and those working for them are expected to voice any concerns regarding alleged violations of the law or these International Anti-Bribery and Corruption Principles. These notifications may be made to the Partner's primary contact person at Viatris or, at the Partner's option, to Viatris Legal Compliance Group at <https://viatris.integrityline.com/> or telephone number 0811-288-0001 / 866-620-6896.
